Description

Announced on 21 June 1978, the first version of the Aston Martin V8 Volante, with Weber carburetors, with the lower bonnet bulge without an opening soon to be adopted on the “Oscar India” Saloon and Vantage.

Revised side sills and window screen pillars replace the rigidity lost with the removal of the roof. The hood covering material is made from Everflex and adds 44mm (less the 2ins) to the cars height, while the mechanism adds 68kg (150lbs) in weight.

Most examples have the Chrysler Toque Flight automatic gearbox but a small number of manual cars with the five speed ZF dogleg gearbox was fitted.

A number of cars were built with the Vantage 540 or 580 engine but retaining the standard body.
